The Story Celebrate™ Of Your Life!

Patricia Roy

Patricia Roy was born in 1939 right here in Saginaw, Michigan, & she has lived here her entire life. Pat loved going to school & attending St. Mary's as a girl. Her father had a very strong impact on her life because he taught her right from wrong. "Daddy was amazing. He always said you can't do this because it's just not right!" Pat worked in restaurants as a young woman, & worked for the state for 3 years doing paperwork. She particularly enjoyed working in her garden & taking care of the yard.

Pat remembers fondly being introduced to her husband, Denny, through mutual friends. "After that first day we were together for good." she says. She & her busband loved to travel to the Upper Peninsula of Michigan; exploring a different place each time they visited.

Pat's mother was a resident at Community Village years ago. When Pat had her stroke, she knew she would come to Community Village because she had spent so much time here with her mom, & already felt comfortable & at home.

Pat loves to walk outside on the beautiful grounds of Community Village. After her stroke, Pat had to teach herself how to walk all over again, so it is especially rewarding to her. "If you really want something, you have to push yourself. I could have sat back & said "Poor me" but that's just not me." She is also an avid reader & enjoys playing games. Pat says the best part about staying at Community Village is feeling safe. She is glad there is a place where she can have friends & her children don't have to worry about her.
